ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
Board of Education
OF THE
TOWN OF KENSINGTON.

Our state superintendant of Public Instruction, Hon. J. W. Patterson, in his last educational report, answers the question "are our schools really improving," as follows: "one of the best ways to measure progress is to contrast the present with some definite period of the past with which we are familiar. Twelve years ago our normal school was housed in an inconvenient, rickety old habitat, and only had a name to live. To-day through the enlightened action of the State, we have a model school building, splendidly equipped, and a normal hall that would be an honor to any commonwealth. The school is ably conducted and well patronized.

Twelve years ago, the meetings of the State Teachers' Association were but poorly attended, and the exercises awakened but little interest. To-day the teachers of the state flock to these meetings by the hundred and listen with a profound and thoughtful attention to papers and discussions that traverse the whole field of educational work, both as a science and an art. In this organization, the teachers of the state have become an affiliated professional guild.

"Within a decade the law has devolved upon the town, both the duty and the expense of furnishing text books without charge to all the children, thereby making public education more free and more efficient."

"Within a decade, too, an ample and permanent fund has been set apart by the legislature for the maintenance of an annual teachers institute in all the counties of the state. The instruction in these meetings has been given by the ablest and most experienced educators in our own and other states, and they have been attended each year by more than a thousand teachers with an ever increasing interest,"

Within this period the teaching of physiology and hygiene, with special reference to the effect of stimulants and narcotics upon the human system has been made compulsory in all schools except the primary and with most gratifying results.

But the greatest and most far-reaching change made in the last ten years has been the substitution of the town system of schools for the effete and impotent system of district schools. By continuous changes of population, the district school has lost much of its usefulness, in many towns, no longer susceptible of improvement. But under the town system it is regaining its power, and a better educated class of children is growing up in the rural sections of the state.

Men and women are the best product of New Hampshire, and they must be sent forth from the schools with the old time stamp of intelligence and efficiency.

As a part of the educational system of the state, we of course share in some measure in the fruits of the progress which has been made in the past and especially during the official term of the late superintendent of public instruction. Judged by the severest tests we are confident it can be shown that the schools, of the town have made notable progress under the charge of the several teachers who have been employed in the time specified.

So far as we know this has been the unanimous testimony of all visitors of the schools, and of all persons sufficiently interested to seek the evidence.

We cannot think of a year under the present superintendence in which better work has been done than in the year just closed. Miss Jewell, in the west school added to the excellent reputation of her first year's experience and leaves to the board the pleasant duty of unqualified commendation.

Miss Lamprey, in the east school, surpassed her former record, and has the special approval of the board as a teacher ever ready to receive any hints or suggestions and to adopt any new methods and arrangements that give promise of greater usefulness.

The first term of the north school was taught by Miss Mary Prescott of this town, but her strength not proving adequate to the duties of so large a school, after faithful and successful services, she resigned and was succeeded by Miss Emma Webster of East Kingston, well known personally and as a former teacher of this school, Miss Webster was the unanimous choice of the parents and of the board of education, and closed her two terms of service with their unanimous approval.

The expenditure for school supplies has been $52.68, or about sixty cents for each registered scholar. When it is remembered that all the scholars are furnished not only with books for study, but with writing books, blanks, spelling and composition books, pens, pencils, ink, crayons, &c., the sum will not be thought extravagant and is indeed probably less per scholar than under the old system.

For the better care and preservation of the books, it is desirable that a bookcase large enough to hold books, charts and other supplies should be put into each house.

Enumeration of children by selectmen, boys 38, girls 35.

On the 21st of October, or Columbus Day, the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America was enthusiastically commemorated by the pupils of the several schools with appropriate exercises of recitations and addresses. In the afternoon of the day the united schools marched in procession to the town hall and with select patriotic recitations entertained a large and appreciative audience, after which a bountiful collation was served by the parents and others interested.

The year will be memorable from the fact that by the exertions of the scholars our beautiful national flag was hoisted over all our school houses, and now waves during school sessions in token of their youthful patriotic ardor and as an educator in the duties of citizenship.
